Update on Athena

On Monday, April 19th, Kansas Department of Corrections (KDOC) launched a new web-based core information system, ATHENA. Upon deployment, ATHENA replaced the CASMS, TOADS and JAMS systems. KDOC Information Technology staff (KDOC-IT) with the support of Microsoft started to migrate the data from the three legacy systems into ATHENA on the weekend prior to deployment. Because of the volume of data needing to be migrated over to ATHENA and some technical issues, some records were migrated the following weekend. As of this writing, KDOC-IT is continuing to work on resolving some of the data sets in order to complete the data migration process.

Beginning in March and prior to the launch date, KDOC provided training to over 600 staff from around the state on how to operate ATHENA and over 450 staff were trained on how to operate the juvenile intake portion of ATHENA. As ATHENA users continue to use the new system and have questions there are several methods to get support of questions/problems addressed:

1. Email addresses have been created with KDOC staff reaching out to them. Email staff can e-mail KDOC_JSCC.AthenaHelp@ks.gov
2. KDOC is providing a weekly opportunity for ATHENA Users to ask questions and answer them. People can call in remote via zoom. Two meetings have been held with two more to be held: ✓ Wednesday, May 5; 10 – 11 AM ✓ Wednesday, May 12; 10 – 11 AM To access these meetings use this link:
   https://kdoc.zoom.us/j/2447789056?pwd=RFDFDSuwXiTIcXFDVvZ2L2sLbWRvZz09
The Meeting ID is: 824 4778 0506 The Passcode is: 010891
3. The ATHENA Team at KDOC has also developed a list of Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) which is available at Microsoft Word - ATHENA FAQ (powerdms.com)

If you are having problems with ATHENA signing on, not being able to access the right functions or you have reason to believe the system is not performing properly you can submit a Help Desk ticket through the KDOC Portal or contact the Help Desk by phone at (785) 746-7660 or by email at KDOC.Customer.Service@ks.gov

In a memo provided to KDOC staff and stakeholders across the state, Secretary of Corrections Jeff Zmuda wrote “In the weeks ahead I want all of you to continue to support and open communication to the work that led to the development of this technology. While ATHENA is developed and supported by Microsoft, one of the largest corporations in the world, who brings to this task the skill sets, experience, and resources necessary to launch this system change, we should expect some transitional needs to arise. When they do (I hope that you will be patient knowing that the resources of Microsoft are at our full disposal in this implementation phase).”

The Juvenile Justice Corner

Hope Cooper, Deputy Secretary

DOC - Juvenile and Adult Community-Based Services

The Kansas Department of Corrections – Juvenile Services Division (KDOC-JS) will look a little different starting this next fiscal year. With a renewed focus on support of the local agencies in the communities we serve, an organizational structure shift will provide units that serve both juvenile, adult and the joint agencies. The units will be arranged by the following categories:

- Grant management and quality assurance
- Special projects
- Compliance and facility support
- Community based services (supervision)
- Crossover youth

The job functions will remain, it is just a shift of where those positions will be organized. Juvenile and Adult functions will remain separated but approach to the work will become more in line with each other.

Kansas Juvenile Correctional Complex - Update

Dustin Karr, Deputy Superintendent

DOC - Kansas Juvenile Correctional Complex

After having been suspended for more than a year, KUCC along with the rest of KDOC facilities resumed in-person visitation on Sunday, April 18! With COVID-19 numbers in the community trending down, we feel comfortable that we can safely begin opening our facilities to visitation again but we do have to understand that there is still risk and so we must still take safety precautions. The first thing to note is that while we are making this big step forward, we are not going to immediately resume what was considered “normal” visitation prior to COVID-19. We are going to start slowly – safely – and will gradually move back toward normal as the situation and the virus allows us to safely do so.

At this time, in-person visitation will be limited to immediate family members and each youth will be allowed a maximum of two visitors per visitation. Immediate family is defined by KDOC Internal Management Policy and Procedure 10-113D as, parents, step-parents, siblings, spouses of siblings, half-siblings, step-siblings, children, step-children, ... spouse, parents of spouse, grandchildren, or any person who filled the role of parent de facto with respect to the offender as confirmed by the warden superintendent as the primary factor of the social history. After more than a year not being able to see their child/loved one in person, the youth not being able to physically see parents, their parents, siblings, grandparents, or anyone who filled the role of parent de facto with respect to the offender. We want to ensure that youth and their immediate family have the opportunity to be together before we extend to more distant family members, friends, etc. Any two approved visitors who meet that definition of immediate family will be able to schedule a visit. We understand that placing the limit of two (2) visitors disappointing; however, for social distancing purposes, we must temporarily reduce the capacity of our visitation rooms and placing this limit of two visitors per youth.

National News – Dual Involved Youth

Reducing System Crossover for Black LGBTQ+ Girls and Nonbinary Youth

Crossover youth (CY) is a term used to describe youth who have experienced maltreatment and engaged in delinquency and involvement with the juvenile justice system. This means they are both in the care of the child welfare system and the juvenile justice system. Within and across each of these systems, it has become evident that lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and questioning (LGBTQ+) youth are overrepresented compared to their heterosexual, cisgender peers. Further, Black girls are disproportionately represented in the CY population when compared to their White counterparts who are only Read more . . .

UH Law Center Combines Forces with Center for Urban Transformation to Expand Pro Bono Juvenile Justice

The University of Houston Law Center’s Juvenile and Children’s Advocacy Project (UCAP) is collaborating with the Center for Urban Transformation’s juvenile diversion program (CUT) to expand CUT’s capacity to represent and serve young people in Houston’s Fifth Ward (TX), with a goal of breaking the school-to-prison pipeline. JCAP will provide CUT clients with superior legal representation in multiple capacities including youth with solely juvenile justice system involvement; youth with dual system (DFS and juvenile justice) involvement; juvenile record Read more . . .

SC begins Juvenile Justice Reform Amid DOJ Criticism; Charleston County First Test Site

South Carolina’s juvenile justice system had a rocky year in 2020, according to a report stating that overcrowded facilities, custody for endangering the youth in its care to a lawsuit against Charleston County’s detention facility. Attempts at reform were slow and inconsistent. In 2021, state officials and advocates are arguing for change, starting a three-year partnership with the Center for Children’s Law and Policy and the National Council for Juvenile Justice reform group Read more . . .

National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges Launch Innovative Bench Card Resource Center for Judiciary

The National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges (NCJFCJ), with support from the State Justice Institute (SJI), announces the launch of an all-new Bench Card Resource Center for the judiciary. Juvenile and family court judges primarily use bench cards during hearings on matters related to child welfare, family violence, juvenile justice, and child custody. Ideally, judges review each case, hearing and assess all pertinent information. Read more . . .

Joint Statement on the Importance of Specialization of Judges, Prosecutors and Defenders in Juvenile Delinquency Proceedings and Resource for Behavior and Language in Juvenile Court

Today, the National Juvenile Defender Center (NJDC), the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges (NCJFCJ), and Fair and Just Prosecutors (FJP) issued a joint statement underscoring the importance of specialization, training and experience for judges, prosecutors and defenders assigned to all important juvenile delinquency practice. In collaboration with the Georgetown Law Juvenile Justice Initiative, these groups have also published a resource guide delineating best practices for juvenile court understanding behavior and using juvenile justice language in juvenile court. “We all want young people to thrive,” said Mary Ann Scali, executive director of NJDC. Zoom fatigue? Not in Utah Juvenile Detention Facilities

When the COVID-19 pandemic hit last year, Utah’s juvenile detention centers halted visitation. “Heavy moments. Like, reading evidence and waiting longer for trial,” said a veteran resource officer. But even quickly pivoted to relying on Zoom, FaceTime, WebEx and other video communication technologies, the state’s juvenile Read more . . .

Restorative Justice, Part 1: Juvenile Court Diversion is Cheap and Effective, But inconsistent Across N.H.

Only a few months away from graduating from Spaulding High School in Concord, NH, 17-year-old specialist, Janet, never imagined small talk would change his life. He remembers his 17-year-old self as a typical rambunctious teenager who skipped a few classes a day to smoke weed with his friends behind the school. Something anyone at that age would do, he thought. But as everyone quickly pivoted to Zoom, FaceTime, WebEx and other video communication technologies, the state’s juvenile Read more . . .

School Resource Officers ‘The Gatekeepers’ of Juvenile Court Diversion

Nicole E. Rodler, co-chairwoman of the New Hampshire Juvenile Court Diversion Network, calls school resource officers (SROs) “the gatekeepers” of the juvenile court diversion system. While their exact roles vary by school district and police department, SROs are generally tasked with keeping school campuses secure, protecting staff and students, mentoring students, and handling in-school juvenile offenses. They are the officers most likely to know the Read more . . .

How One City Used Federal Funds to Create Reentry Housing Opportunities

Lack of access to safe, affordable housing is a widespread problem in the United States. A first step to addressing that problem is for jurisdictions to conduct a housing needs assessment, which provides a baseline for efforts to increase housing access and supply. The City of Salina, Kansas, conducted such an assessment in 2016. As a result, city officials Read more . . .

IYOuth Bills Part of Larger Effort to Reform Connecticut’s Juvenile Justice System

Last month, legislation expanding pre-arrest diversion opportunities for youth and shifting responsibility for all youth under 18 who are being held before trial to the Connecticut judicial branch was introduced in the state legislature. The provisions are part of a larger bill proposing sweeping reforms to Connecticut’s juvenile justice system. Connecticut has made much progress in recent years to reduce the number of young people who enter its juvenile justice system. However, Read more . . .

As Students Return to In-Person Learning, Supportive School Discipline Should be Prioritized

With school buildings across the country starting to reopen, administrators’ focus will be on preventing the spread of COVID-19 and making up for lost instructional time. New 50-State Analysis to Focus on Critical Role of Juvenile Court Judges Juvenile court judges play a critical role in promoting public safety and improving outcomes for the youth who enter their courtrooms. Not only do judges decide individual youth delinquency cases, including the level and type of supervision and services juveniles receive, they are also uniquely positioned to lead juvenile justice system reform efforts. Many states, however, lack laws or court rules—on youth development, evidence-based models, and more—that Read more . . .

allows a greater number of individual youth and their families the opportunity to have a visit rather than limiting the number of visits for youth so that the number of visitors could be larger. What I can say is this is something that we will be frequently re-evaluating, and we will expand that number as soon as we are safely able to do so. We will have 30-60 visitation sessions each visit day, lasting for 90 minutes each. This timeframe allows the opportunity for adequate cleaning and sanitation prior to the next visitation block beginning. Sessions will be from 8:00am – 9:30am; 10:00am – 11:30am; 12:00pm – 1:30pm; 2:00pm – 3:30pm. At this time, all youth will be eligible for 90-minute visitation regardless of incentive level; as noted above, with reduced capacity, the intent here is to ensure the room to allow all youth and all families the opportunity to visit. This, also, is something that will be frequently re-evaluated and will be updated as soon as circumstances allow.

As families arrive for their visit, they are checking in with facility staff who perform a temperature check and symptom screening in accordance with the mitigation procedures that we have in place for the safety of staff through the course of the pandemic. In order to ensure the health and safety of all youth, staff, and visitors, anyone presenting with two or more symptoms associated with COVID-19, anyone who has been in contact with a confirmed COVID-positive person in the last 14 days, and/or anyone with a temperature reading of 103.3 will not be permitted to enter the facility. Additionally, in accordance with Executive Order #20-S2, anyone entering KDOC buildings or facilities will be required to wear a mask. The decision to temporarily suspend visitation over the past year and the measures that we have in place for visitation at this time have been, and continue to be, focused on ensuring the health and safety of the residents and staff. These limitations won’t be in place forever; this is a starting point, an initial balance of two very important factors: safety and family. We understand that this is a big deal for everyone—especially the youth and their families—and we very much hope to finally be able to bring these families back together in person!
