POLICY

Protective Custody (PC) is a housing assignment that separates an individual from the general population for their safety. An incarcerated individual's situation, circumstances, or behaviors may contribute to the need for protection. Most can correct such behaviors and successfully return to the general population. In most cases, the goal is to reintegrate the individual back into general population when it is reasonable and safe to do so.

The KDOC provides those in protective custody, to the extent possible, the same access to education, treatment, recreation, and amenities as those of the same custody level.

As such, each facility must operate a protective custody program as an adjunct to the facility’s administrative restrictive housing unit.

DEFINITIONS

Modified Operational Unit: A term used to describe housing which modifies operations to allow limited engagement with general population residents; however, to the extent possible allows the same access to education, treatment, recreation, and amenities as those of the same custody level.

Protective Custody: Housing in administrative restrictive housing or modified operational units for residents requiring protection from others until reintegration into a general population environment is facilitated.

Restrictive Housing: A generic term used to describe housing which separates residents from the general population for both administrative and disciplinary purposes.

PROCEDURES

I. Protective Custody

A. Admission to Administrative Restrictive Housing classified as protective custody is to be made only when there is documentation that protective custody is warranted and that a reasonable alternative is not available.

1. For juvenile services, the request is to be reviewed and approved by the Superintendent or designee.

2. The restrictive housing review board is to review protective custody cases with a goal of reintegration to general population as soon as possible.

B. The resident is to sign a consent form.
1. JUVENILE: Protective Custody Request form (Attachment A), agreeing to protective custody when the resident requests the placement.
   a. The resident’s treatment team is to develop a special management plan to assure safety and continuous services and programming. Continued confinement after 72 hours is approved by the Superintendent.
   b. If the resident does not consent to the protective custody placement, a hearing is to be held according to IMPP 20-105J.

2. ADULT: The Warden or shift supervisor, at their discretion, can order immediate restrictive housing status when it is necessary to protect the resident or others. The status is to be reviewed within 72 hours by the Classification Administrator.

C. The reasons for protective custody must be documented.

D. Protective custody is to be for as short a time period as possible under the circumstances.
   1. Long-term protective custody is to be documented and monitored.

E. Each denial of protective custody is to be documented showing the reason justifying the denial.
   1. Such denial and the reason justifying shall be the basis for the Restrictive Housing Review Board to look at an appropriate reintegration plan to include placement into a modified operational unit. Case management engagement with the resident to include an individualized reintegration plan shall be completed to assist in discharge from Restrictive Housing as appropriate.

F. Each protective custody resident who is involuntarily released is to be informed of the reasons for release.
   1. ADULT: This notification is to be documented by the unit team manager or designee.

   2. JUVENILE: This notification shall be documented by the Corrections Counselor II or designee.
